

You have 0 PDFs in your basket.

'Welcome to Poole' tile panel

'Welcome to Poole' tile panel, 1950s

This panel was made by the company Carter & Co. of Poole, part of which later became known as Poole Pottery. From the late 19th century until the 1960s the company produced tiles and architectural products for use in buildings in many parts of the world. A number of these panels, designed by Arthur Nickols, were located on roads entering Poole and marked the borough boundary. The design shows X-class sailing boats racing in Poole Harbour.

Find us

Poole Museum Service
4 High St, Poole, Dorset, BH15 1BW

Email us

museums@bcpcouncil.gov.uk

Call us

01202 128 888